Clear Creek Sports Club is a family ran hunting club that has been open since 1986. The land has changed throughout the years, but the same great personal service and top quality game birds have not. Owners Brad and Evangelina Henman are third generation hunting club operators that still believe that you treat each member like they are family.

The headquarters is located on a 1,400 acre ranch at Rolling Hills Casino Corning, California on land owned by the Nomlaki Indian Tribe. In cooperation with the Tribe, Clear Creek Sports Club is developing a wildlife oasis for upland game birds, waterfowl, turkey, and dove. Wildlife management is first with food plots and nesting cover being developed throughout the HQ ranch. There is fishing also available on the ranch in the 65 acre lake for Trophy Trout. This along with BV Farms a rice ranch west of Corning with over 800+ acres of wild and farmed habitat, the club has a little of something for everyone.

The Club is most well known for the fast flying pheasants that make for a more challenging hunt. The Henman Family has been raising club birds for over 25 years. They raise the bird specifically for hunting clubs and have developed a strain of pheasants that are a smaller sized bird that flies harder even in tough conditions.
Come and see why people say it is just like hunting wild birds!

Thanks for visiting our website and good hunting!
